Freelance writer Amy Racie provided The Chicago Network for Women's Not Just Business's Personal Page 88 and was delighted to meet a wealth of women from a diverse range of expertise. This is such a talented group of intelligent, creative, vibrant women who are so ardent about helping women succeed, she said. I'm deeply impressed by their commitment and truly humbled by the warmth with which they welcomed me. These women are the embodiment of the true spirit of feminism.

Tori Cooper finds that photography serves as the perfect balance between creativity and technique. Her in-depth approach encourages self-expression, not only her own, but most importantly, that of her subjects. Tori's assignments have ranged from advertising and editorial, kids to corporate portraiture as well as food to fashion. A partial list of her clients include Siemens, Wyatt Corporate and The American Cancer Society. This month Tori beautifully captures Cheryl Jackson Cover 88 and the women of the L.A. C 88-88.

Long before Joseph Hampton became a sought-after makeup artist, the Texas native honed his skills by working behind the makeup counter and freelancing for various cosmetic companies. However, it wasn't until he moved to New York City, that he made a name for himself by working for celebrities such as Tyra Banks, Fran and Patti Labelle, as well as magazines ranging from Essence to Vogue Mexico. Having experienced the fast pace of New York for 15 years, Hampton has made the transition to Chicago and now calls it home. Joseph was the makeup mastermind for Cheryl's look on this month's cover.
